TEACHERS CLUB HAS PARTY

The annual Christmas party of the Marion Teachers' Club was held at the home of Mrs. Katherine Frizzell, Water Street, Mattapoisett.

Mrs. Frizzell's home was beautifully decorated in keeping with the Yuletide Season.

The festive refreshments were served by the hospitality committee, under the direction of Mrs. Richard Blasdale, chairman.

Gifts were exchanged and Mrs. Blasdale was the recipient of the door prize, a magnificent white poinsettia.

During the brief business meeting, led by Mrs. Edward Dubiel, club president, it was decided that the members donate for a Christmas basket or project in lieu of exchanging greeting cards as is the usual custom.

Among the invited guests were the cafeteria personnel, the custodians and the secretarial staff.

ROSARY SOCIETY TO HEAR DR. SENESAC

The Altar Rosary Society of St. Anthony's Church, Mattapoisett will meet this Wednesday, January 6th, at 7:30 P.M. at the church hall. Dr. Archibald Senesac of New Bedford will be the guest speaker, and his subject will be "Hypnotism in Medicine".

VISITED PARENTS FOR HOLIDAYS

Miss Cynthia Walker spent the Christmas holidays visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Walker, of Snipatuit Road, Rochester. Miss Walker is attending Bridgewater Teachers College.

microscope. Today, thanks to his research and that of others associated with him, it is possible to see not only the rheumatic fever antibodies which then interested him, but those for all the other ills listed above.

This is a truly wonderful medical tool--for in seeing the antibody the researcher also sees its enemy--the virus he is fighting.

Dr. Coons was a young resident at Boston City Hospital when he began wondering about the problem in 1940. Today he is at Harvard Medical School, one of the American Heart Association's seven career investigators--men whose work is supported by the American Heart Association throughout their professional lives.

A year after Dr. Coons started work on the project, he and two associates were able to announce that a glowing green "tail light" could be attached to antibodies with the help of fluorescent dye, making these tiny particles visible under the microscope. Since then the fluorescent antibody technique has spread to laboratories throughout the world.

Researchers now can locate and identify a virus by watching its attached antibody glowing apple-green under the fluorescent microscope. The power of the antibody to find its specific virus far exceeds the present ability of chemists to distinguish between molecules that look alike.

So the antibody, as well as fighting the disease, becomes a beacon to light up the antigen, not only in a cell but in specific parts of cells. Recently the technique enabled Dr. Aaron Sulzman, in Dr. Coons' laboratory, to show that the A and B substances distinguishing major blood groups are located to battle that microbe.

In many cases, the body continues to make these specific substances over many years or even through life--producing the same kind of immunity brought, for example, by vaccination.

The Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare recently announced a plan to apply the technique to help diagnose a variety of infectious diseases. At the Communicable Disease Center in Atlanta, it is being used to tell whether microbe found in a person's throat is harmless or a streptococcus which can cause rheumatic fever and possible heart damage.

Although the Coons work is supported by the American Heart Association, its benefits affect too many human ills to be listed here, with the prospect of continual widening of its scope.

For the invention of a major new scientific technique opens hundreds of doors that previously had been closed to mankind.

without shells. The lead seemed to have hit stones. The ship heads South making a drift of nearly East. We are at noon 35 miles SSW from Montaug Point. At night we have a breeze from SW to NW unsteady. The night is cloudless and beautiful. At P.M. we raise Montaug light bearing N by E, distant 20 or 25 miles. We sound and get 27 fathoms light gray sand. At midnight we sounded 15 miles, the light bearing N by E 25 fathoms light gray sand.

March 9th. Tuesday begins with pleasant weather, the wind light from NNW. At 3 A.M. spoke us and put a pilot on board the Pilot Boat SUPERIOR of Martha's Vineyard. She played around us like a spirit on shadowy wings. At daylight the wind is about N and Block Island bears ENE dist. 9 or 10 miles. Montaug about the same distance to the northward and westward. There is some snowbanks visible. No one unless placed in a similar situation can imagine my feelings this morning. My own native hills are in sight. My wife, my children and friends, where are they? Are they in life or are they dead? I have not had news from them for the long space of 2½ years. What changes time makes in that time. My heart grows sick in anticipation. The flowers by the wayside that leads to the future, do they bloom or are they faded? There is a ship in sight bound in. It proves to be the DROMO of New London. We speak the New London pilot boat. Capt. Rogers Clark abuses our Vineyard pilot. I make some preparations for going ashore.

CHRISTMAS ASSEMBLY HELD

A Christmas assembly was held in the auditorium of the Rochester Memorial School with Thomas J. MacDonald in charge.

Mrs. Helen Baker's grade 1 sang "Jesus Our Brother", and James Lawrence presented a solo, "What Can I Give Him". Pupils in grade 2 presented a play entitled "A Bunny For Christmas", under the supervision of Mrs. Agnes Bonner.

Mrs. Helen Gibbs' grade 3 presented a skit, "Christmas Party". A play entitled "An All American Christmas" was presented by Mrs. Katherine Blair's grade 4 class. Pupils in grade 5, under the supervision of Mrs. Ruby Lindsay, sang "O Come All Ye Faithful" and "Oh Infant Sweet".

Mr. MacDonald's grade 6A presented the songs, "Angels O'er the Fields" and "Christmas Awake". A ribbon dance was presented by pupils in Miss Shirley Williams' grade 6B.

Grades 7 and 8 presented an adaptation of Dickens' "Christmas Carol" which was under the supervision of Mrs. Barbara Lynch and William Hydorn. Mrs. Lindsay was the pianist.

Properties and all costumes for the plays and skits were made by the pupils of Mrs. Violet Tillson's class.

Christmas parties were held in the lower grades with refreshments served. All pupils in each grade exchanged cards.
